The collaboration speaks to a shared belief that the most meaningful family holidays are rooted in genuine experience. As more families seek purposeful getaways, the Sentosa Survival Camp Staycation offers the chance to slow down, reconnect and rediscover the joy of outdoor play. By combining a resort stay with guided outdoor activities, the programme hopes to foster confidence, curiosity and resilience in young explorers.

"Amara Sanctuary Sentosa has always been a place where history, nature and hospitality come together in an unexpected way," said Anthony Lim, General Manager of Amara Sanctuary Sentosa. "Our partnership with Into The Wild reflects our ongoing commitment to curating thoughtful, experience-led programmes that evolve with our guests' interests, offering fresh and immersive ways to discover the resort beyond a bed-and-breakfast stay".

"Through my work in disaster response and wilderness medicine, I've seen how powerful it is when people know how to stay calm, solve problems and care for others in difficult situations," said Zhang Tingjun, Co-Founder of Into The Wild. "That's the spirit behind Into The Wild, teaching kids survival skills, first aid and resilience through real challenges. Our partnership with Amara Sanctuary Sentosa allows us to bring these lessons to life in a truly unique environment."

"As an athlete, I learned that confidence and teamwork are built by stepping outside your comfort zone," added Joscelin Yeo, Co-Founder of Into The Wild. "That's what we want children to take on challenges together, learning new skills, and discovering they are capable of far more than they imagined. Sentosa gives us an incredible setting for that journey."
